London (Is A Little Bit Of Alright)

Reference number PT0207

I was born and bred in London,
It's the only city I know.
Tho' it's foggy and cold and wet,
I'd be willing to take a bet that there ain't no other place I'd want to go.
Believe me,

Refrain

London is a little bit of alright,
Nobody can deny that's true.
Bow bells, Big Ben, up to the Heath and down again and if you should visit the monkeys in the zoo,
bring a banana,
Feed the ducks in Battersea Park or take a trip to Kew.
It only costs a tanner there and back.
Watch our lads in the palace yard
Troop the colour and change the guard and don't forget your brolly and your mack:
And I'd like to mention
London is a place where you can call right
round and have a cosy cup of tea.
If you're fed right up and got your tail right down,
Then London town is a wonderful place to be.

London is a little bit of alright,
Nobody can deny that's so.
Big Ben, Bow bells, have a good laugh and watch the swells treating themselves to a trot on Rotten Row, sitting on horses.
Grosvenor Square or Petticoat Lane,
Belgravia, Peckham Rye,
You can stray thru any neighbourhood.
If you haven't a swanky club,
Just pop into the nearest pub,
a little of what you fancy does you good,
And I'd like to mention
London is a place where you can call right
round and have a cosy cup of tea.
If you use your loaf a bit and know what's what,
Then this old spot is a bloody good place to be.
