Never Learned To Type

Reference number PT0404

JOSEPHINA

Never learned to type,
Never felt the need.
Ever since I stood so high,
All that I cared to try was to sing and dance.

Mother said I'd fly
"You'll be the greatest star"
and the years flew by.

Never finished school,
Moved away instead,
New York City called my name,
so did fame, so I came.

In my one room flat,
I would sit and cry
"You'll be the greatest star"
and the years flew by.

Now I see these kids
moving to New York, with their endless drive and their goals intact.

And I wonder
Do they know half of them will up and go such a shame I never was that type.

Never felt so old,
but you drudge ahead time slips by and there you are, tending bar
what a star.

But you come to terms that your dreams are gone.
You're not the greatest star
And the years drag on.

Someday soon a break might come, least I hear it does for some but you stop believing in the hype.

Deeper debt and endless bills,
longer hours and steeper hills,
Such a shame I never learned to type.

Mm
Mm
Such a shame
I never learned to type.
