Watch Me Soar

Reference number PT0611

I know that it's hard for you to imagine that I'm not the young girl you once knew I'm no longer twelve what you see is a woman standing in front of you and I, I have been patient and I have been kind I paid you my dues and gave up my time I can't be confined to the past anymore, my wings have grown.
Ev'ryone says just to be thankful, just to be grateful,
just let it be,
but I'm tired of this waiting,
It's always tomorrow
I'm done with perceptions that you've had of me
I've given you blood, you've given me tears, I've given my heart for so many years but it's finally time to fend for myself and open my wings.
It's my time to soar yes, my time and I don't need you to love me that's not what I asked Just want you to see that I'm more than my past.
You have expectations well, they're just too small,
and I'm dreaming big, so watch me soar, watch me soar, watch me soar, it's time to let go take a leap,
touch the sky feel the wind press against me as my wings learn to fly then soar.
I will soar!
I will soar!

I know that it's hard for you to imagine that I'm not that young girl you once knew.
I'm no longer twelve,
what you see is a woman soaring in front of you.
