You Don't Know

Reference number PT0657

You don't know what it is to believe
in a storybook world guaranteed to come true.
Waking up each day to your glory-book world
with your eyes full of dreams and your skies full of blue.
Looking night after night down the block
for the swing of those shoulders, the curve of that chin.
Happy and proud when the man in your cloud
stops your heart with a wave and a grin.

You don't know what it is to believe
you are safe and secure in your heaven for two,
Only to find you are locked in a nightmare
with ev'ryone safe and secure except you.

Here am I, with a heart full of hate
for a love I don't know how to kill.
You don't know what that is
and as long as I live I promise you, you never will.
