Stranger In This World

Reference number PT0837

I'm turning my back on this life for as long as I can.
Someone make me star coz I sure as hell can't be a man.

I'm too fragile and clever you know
And this universe just leaves me cold.
I'm just hanging around here,
I'm longing for someone to hold.

You always knew, didn't you mother?
You always knew as mothers always do.
You always knew, didn't you mother,
I was a stranger in this world?

This dumb education was never quite part of my plan.
So you left me to ruins, but I'll always know who I am.

I'm too fragile and clever you see,
and your universe just leaves me cold.
I'm just hanging around here,
I'm longing for someone to hold.

You always knew, didn't you mother?
You always knew as mothers always do.
You always knew, didn't you mother,
I was a stranger in this world?

Whoever told you that these were the days of our lives?
The sweet boys they crumble the wicked ones rise and survive.
And they're running our lives, yes, they're running our lives.

You always knew, didn't you mother,
I was a stranger in this world?
On a clear day, I can see myself for miles.
O mother. O mother. O mother.
