I'm Called Little Buttercup

Reference number PT0958

I just got your letter, and yes, I feel much better.

thanks for asking.

Sorry I wasn't there to entertain you in math class today.

Did Mister Jenkins do that thing where he straightens his toupe?

Anyway...

I can't believe the words you had to say, 'cause lately I've been feeling that we've been friends for ever so please understand my fear of screwing up something special and getting scared with something real.

But I've been working up the courage for the last four years to tell you what I'm feeling and hope it's what you want to hear.

I've given up on that something I didn't think it could be real.

So, no need to sound poetic.

You're trying though, I get it.

just be you, 'cause you is who I grew to like...

or whatever...

I could have said that better.

You is who I grew to adore.

So, no more, non more sorries about the other night.

We were living in the moment and just doing what felt right.

So, no more sorries, I won't have it.

'Cause the other night was magic.

After all, there's a first time for ev'rything.

I've been working up the courage for the last four years to tell you what I'm feeling and hope it's what you want to hear.

'Cause I've dreamed of you and me together through happiness and tears.

I'd given up on that something I didn't think it could be real.

It's non-stop, the thought of you and I.
The talks...
Robotic like a broken cord.
You have to shake me to get me to stop.
My friends must hate me 'cause I won't shut up, and wel...
I think you're cute too.
I feel like I'm living in a dream come true, 'cause I can't feel the ground when I'm twenty feet above it but tomorrow is different because I'm falling in love.

I've been working up the courage for the last four years to tell you what I'm feeling and hope it's what you want to hear.
'Cause I've dreamed of you and me together through happiness and tears.
I'd given up on that something I didn't think it could be real.
I'd given up on that something I didn't think it could be real.
The answer's yes, Tom, I love you.
I can't believe that this is real.
